EATING IN BOTSWANA AND ZIMBABWE:

Eating in Botswana and Zimbabwe offers a rich cultural experience, deeply rooted in local traditions and ingredients.

In Botswana, meals revolve around staples like maize, sorghum, and beans, with seswaa (slowcooked, pounded beef or goat) and pap (maize porridge) taking centre stage. Dishes are hearty and often accompanied by vegetables, stews, or wild game meat like impala or kudu.

In Zimbabwe, meals focus on sadza, a thick maize meal porridge, typically paired with relishes such as stewed meat, vegetables, or nyama (grilled meat). Popular dishes include nyama choma (roast meat) and muriwo (leafy greens). Both countries celebrate communal eating, with food embodying the warmth and hospitality of Southern African culture.

DEVELOPMENT IN BOTSWANA AND ZIMBABWE:

Botswana:

Botswana is often regarded as a development success story in Africa. Since gaining independence in 1966, the country has experienced significant economic growth, primarily driven by its diamond industry. Botswana's stable political environment, sound governance, and prudent fiscal management have helped it build a relatively robust economy. Investments in education, healthcare, and infrastructure have improved living standards, and the country ranks high on the Human Development Index (HDI) in Africa. Tourism, particularly around wildlife and national parks like Chobe, is another growing sector, contributing to diversification efforts beyond mining.

Zimbabwe:

Zimbabwe's development, on the other hand, has been more complex. Once considered one of Africa's most prosperous nations, Zimbabwe has faced economic challenges, including hyperinflation, political instability, and international sanctions, particularly from the early 2000s. These factors have significantly hindered development, causing a decline in key sectors like agriculture and manufacturing. However, the country continues to show resilience, with efforts underway to stabilize the economy and rebuild infrastructure. Agriculture remains a key focus, particularly with initiatives to revive commercial farming. Tourism, especially around Victoria Falls, plays a crucial role in its economic recovery efforts.

Both nations are committed to diversifying their economies, fostering sustainable development, and improving the quality of life for their citizens, though they face distinct challenges and opportunities.

ACCOMMODATION:

Your accommodation has been selected for convenience of location, comfort or character, and can range from a business hotel in one city to a family-run guesthouse in a smaller town or a heritage-type hotel. In remote areas, accommodation may be of a lower standard and may not have western amenities. Hotels are generally rated as local three to four-star standard, but do please note that there is no international classification system for hotels and differences in facilities and quality do exist between New Zealand and Africa. Rest assured that all hotels used by Wendy Wu Tours are regularly inspected by our staff and our partners to ensure that standards are met.

All group tour hotels have private western bathroom facilities, air conditioning, TV and a telephone. Plumbing and electricity supplies can be erratic and quite often the power in hotel rooms is turned off while guests are out of the room. If you experience any difficulty, please speak to your Local Guide.

SOUVENIRS:

We want to be able to give you an opportunity to buy souvenirs, so we include some stops at museums or exhibitions that demonstrates a craft or product unique to that region with pieces available to buy. We understand that souvenir hunting is not for everyone so we aim to take you to places that hold local interest. We trust you will enjoy these opportunities to learn about local arts and crafts and understand their historical and cultural importance.

TIPPING POLICY:

Tipping while on holiday is common in most parts of the world and Botswana & Zimbabwe is no exception. Tipping practices in Botswana and Zimbabwe are generally similar and reflect the customary norms of Southern Africa. Here's a quick guide to tipping in these countries:

Botswana:

Restaurants: It's customary to leave a tip of around 10-15% of the bill if service is not included. Some upscale restaurants may already include a service charge.

Hotels: For hotel staff, such as bellhops and housekeeping, a tip of around USD$1 - 2 per service is appreciated.

Taxi Drivers: While not mandatory, rounding up the fare or leaving a small tip (around 5-10%) is a nice gesture.

Guides: For tour guides and safari guides, tipping around USD$10 – USD$15 per person / per day is customary, depending on the level of service and the length of the tour.

Zimbabwe:

Restaurants: A tip of around 10-15% of the bill is standard, though some restaurants may include a service charge.

Hotels: It is common to tip hotel staff about USD$ 1-5 per service, such as bellhops and housekeeping.

Taxi Drivers: Similar to Botswana, rounding up the fare or leaving a tip of about 5-10% is appreciated but not expected.

Guides: For guides and drivers, tipping around USD$10-20 per day is typical, reflecting the quality of service and the duration of the tour.

In both countries, tipping is a way to show appreciation for good service and is often an important supplement to the income of service workers. Always check if a service charge has already been added to the bill before deciding on an additional tip.

TRANSPORT:

Coaches: Coaches with air conditioning are used on our tours for city sightseeing, short excursions to the countryside and longer transfers where necessary. Please note it may not always be possible to return to your hotel after sightseeing to freshen up before going to the restaurant for dinner. Roads have generally been improved over recent years, but traffic and/or weather conditions may extend driving times. Road construction work usually covers an enormous section of road - not just one or two kilometres as you may be used to. For this reason, the timings listed in the sections above are approximate.

Botswana:

Road Network: Botswana has a well-maintained road network, with major highways connecting key cities and towns. The roads are generally in good condition, particularly those leading to tourist destinations like Chobe National Park.

Road Safety: Traffic rules are enforced, but road safety can vary. Wildlife crossings are common in national parks, so drivers should remain vigilant. In urban areas, traffic congestion is generally minimal.

Zimbabwe:

Road Network: Zimbabwe's road network varies in quality. Major roads connecting cities like Harare and Bulawayo are generally in fair condition, but secondary and rural roads can be less well-maintained and may become challenging, especially during the rainy season.

Road Safety: While traffic laws exist, enforcement can be inconsistent. Road safety issues can include potholes, poorly lit roads, and occasional wildlife crossings, particularly in rural areas.

APPROPRIATE DRESS:

When traveling to Botswana and Zimbabwe, dressing appropriately can enhance comfort and respect for local customs. Here's a guide for each country:

Botswana:

Casual Wear: Light, breathable clothing is ideal due to the warm climate. Lightweight shirts, trousers, and dresses in natural fabrics like cotton are recommended.

Safari Clothing: If you're going on safari, wear neutral-coloured clothing (like khaki, olive, or brown) to blend in with the environment and avoid attracting insects. Quick-dry and moisture-wicking fabrics are beneficial.

Cultural Sensitivity: While Botswana is relatively relaxed, it's respectful to dress modestly in rural areas and when visiting local communities.

Zimbabwe:

Casual Wear: Light and breathable clothing is suitable for the generally warm climate. Opt for casual wear like T-shirts, shorts, and skirts.

Safari Clothing: Neutral-coloured, lightweight clothing is best for safari activities. Avoid bright colours and stick to colours that blend with the natural surroundings.

Cultural Sensitivity: In Zimbabwe, modest dress is appreciated, particularly in rural areas and when interacting with local communities.

In both countries, it's wise to include layers for cooler evenings and early mornings, especially in winter months. Also, packing a hat, sunglasses, and sunscreen will help protect you from the strong sun.

VACCINATIONS AND YOUR HEALTH:

We recommend that you contact either your doctor or Health centre for advice on vaccinations and travel health. Safetravel has a comprehensive website that you may also find useful www.safetravel.govt.nz
